

Prinz zu Salm-Dalberg Wallhausen Johannisberg Grosses Gewächs 2006

90 points, Wine & Spirits

“The Johannisberg’s red slate soils give a distinctly earthy sense of minerality to this wine’s rich notes of apricot and candied lemon. It balances its depth and weight with prominent acidity and that expressive soil tone, yet it needs another year in the bottle to pull everything together.”

Schloss Wallhausen Kabinett 2006

87 points, Wine & Spirits

“A soft balance of sweet orange and nectarine fruit against slatey minerality turns floral on the palate. It’s summery and refreshing.”

Schloss Wallhausen Spatlese 2006

91 points, Wine & Spirits

“Bright citrus and stone fruity flavors combine with prominent slate notes and firm acidity to create a tense, lively texture. It’s bursting with youthful energy and should develop well with age.”

Schloss Wallhausen Roxheimer Berg Spatlese 2006

90 points, Wine & Spirits

“Of all the Salm vineyards, the Roxheimer Berg produces the biggest, broadest wines. This is plush and succulent, its peach and papaya flavors juicy and inviting. The aromas turn to red fruits on the finish, backed by soft notes of slate.”

Prinz zu Salm-Dalberg Wallhausen Johannisberg Auslese 2006

89 points, Wine & Spirits

“Ripe, forward flavors for white peach, guava and kumquat feel voluptuous, supported by soft, earthy notes of slate. It’s thriving on its rich fruit right now: give it some time for that minerality to emerge further.”
